

Natural gas water heaters – Which one's right for you?

June 2013

When the time comes to replace your water heater, it's nice to know you have options. Take a look at the information below and decide which option works best for you.

Consider a high-efficiency storage tank water heater if you:

- Currently have a storage tank water heater
- Don't want to make a major change
- Are willing to pay a little more up front to reduce water heating bills by about 7%

Consider a whole-home tankless unit if you:

- Are building a new home or doing a remodel
- Often run out of hot water
- Want a water heater with a longer lifespan
- Are willing to pay more up front to reduce water heating bills by about 30%
- Have space for the required venting

Buying guide checklist:

- Research options before your water heater goes out
- Check product availability
- Determine what size you need
- Get purchase and installation quotes from plumbers or retailers
- Search for rebates on www.swgasliving.com and on other websites

SOUTHWEST GAS

Tampering with a natural gas meter, pipeline or any other related equipment not only puts you at risk, but your neighbors and the community as well. Also, energy theft with the intent to avoid payment is illegal.

If you suspect the theft of natural gas or tampering with natural gas facilities call Southwest Gas immediately.

Planning a project that involves digging?

Remember to make the required call to 811 to get underground utility-owned lines marked for free before you start.

Follow these steps to ensure a safe digging project:

- Call 811 at least two days before digging
- Wait for the site to be marked
- Respect the marks
- Dig with care

It's Free. It's Easy. It's the Law.

Not calling 811 can be life-threatening and costly. You can harm yourself or others, disrupt natural gas service to an entire neighborhood, and potentially be responsible for injuries, repair costs, and criminal penalties.

Know what's below.
Call before you dig.
