

Shower Yourself with Savings

December 2012

Save time, save money, and be greener than you think by choosing natural gas for your water heating needs.

A natural gas water heater saves time by heating water twice as fast as an electric model, which means your energy costs are lower and your savings are higher. And, a natural gas water heater has half the carbon footprint of an electric model. Drench yourself in savings with a natural gas water heater.

Shopping tip: when shopping for a natural gas water heater, be sure to consider both the purchase price of the unit as well as the operating costs. Consult the yellow Energy Guide label to compare the energy use of different models.

Save even more with solar...

For additional savings, consider installing a solar water heating system with a natural gas back-up. These systems are clean, efficient and help you save energy while reducing greenhouse gas emissions.
